I know you'll love this training.

Chapter 1: What Is YouTube Marketing All About?

What Is YouTube All About?

Hey there everyone!

We'd like to congratulate you on your decision to take up this course, and to thank you for choosing us as your guide.

This is an immense opportunity for you to learn the ultimate strategies that'll help you scale your online marketing efforts and grow your business on YouTube, the most popular video streaming platform on the internet.

We've created this course to help you discover all the ways in which you can use YouTube to make more money. We've spent a lot of time on the platform, and we've uncovered the best, proven methods to monetize it beyond ad revenue. To kickstart your journey, we'd like to start with the basics.

What is YouTube?

YouTube is, on the surface, an entertainment-centric platform. It is designed to make it easy for common people to find the type of video content that they enjoy, and to stream it seamlessly from any device, wherever they go.

This entertainment model is a modernized spin of the traditional TV format, and it is always online. This means that YouTube provides people from all around the world with 24/7 access to plenty of video content, for free.

Yet, this unlimited access to free video content 24/7 is fueled by brands, businesses, creators, and personalities that are benefiting from uploading their video content to YouTube.

That's right folks, the YouTube platform is open for creators that are willing to feed the platform with quality content in exchange to access an always-online global audience for their products and services.

How Does It Work?

YouTube works because the platform provides an open window for consumers to find quality content and for brands and business to find the right audience whom to promote their offers.

The methods to monetize these audiences are varied and extraordinarily effective, but the business model works like this:

- ✓ YouTube lets people and brands to join and use the platform for free.

- ✓ Brands, business, creators, and personalities produce quality content and upload it to the platform.
- ✓ People look for content they like, find the videos produced by brands in their niche, and start getting familiar with those brands. The higher the quality of the content, the more people start considering those brands.
- ✓ Brands output videos on a consistent basis, and start growing their audience.
- ✓ Once those brands grow an engaged audience and build trust, they start to use monetization strategies that encourage people to spend money on products sold or promoted by those brands.
- ✓ Brands start making money, and can scale their efforts.

Why Should You Consider YouTube For Business?

Many people don't think of YouTube as a platform for business, but you can see results and profits pretty quickly if you do it right, and you don't have to be famous or to have a large budget for that.

The main advantage of YouTube for business is that it lets you leverage all your efforts from a single platform. For starters, it lets you show and build your brand's personality through videos. Long gone are the days of building awareness one image at a time!

On YouTube you can demonstrate your expertise in your niche. This means that you can produce videos to educate potential customers about the problems they face, using your products or services as assistance.

This in turn allows you to also showcase your products and services, their benefits, their features, and everything that makes them different from what's offered by the competition, all without being salesy!

On YouTube you also have a platform to broadcast special occasions, such as in-store events, conferences, and much more. You can also use it to run webinar-style presentations, and to interact with your audience in real time.

YouTube also has a self-serve advertising solution that allows you to promote your content and offers. It has some of the best rates around and gives you hyper-targeting features that will help you reach and convert the perfect customer.

Additionally, YouTube helps you reduce overhead costs and the complexity of running an online business by providing you with a platform where you can host your video content for free.

What's The Future For YouTube Business?

Businesses on YouTube can look to a bright future because the number of active users on the platform is increasing year by year.

Technologies such as 360 video, augmented reality, and virtual reality are going to enhance the user experience, and businesses can leverage that to better showcase their products and services.

Also, content marketing and brand sponsorship are becoming the most effective strategies to drive sales, and YouTube is the perfect environment to develop and run them.

Are you ready to learn what it takes to get the most out of YouTube Business in 2020? Yes? We're glad you are, because we're going to get started in the following lesson!

Chapter 2: Researching And Picking A Profitable Niche

Hey there everyone! Are you ready to get started? Because this lesson is all about the first step that you have to take before you go onto YouTube.

That's right friends, there's homework to do before you go upload your first business video, but don't worry! It'll only take a bit of your time, and will help you stay in line once you start doing YouTube business.

This first step is to research and find a profitable niche to build your YouTube business. A niche is simply the category of product or service that you want to promote and sell.

So let's suppose that you are familiar with healthy living and medical stuff, and you want to dedicate your business to that. That's a good starting point! Now you have to select your niche by narrowing down the exact type of healthy living stuff that you want to promote. That will be your niche!

Let's also suppose that you are not sure what to promote yet, and that you don't know where to start. In this case, you have to start by learning where to find top-selling niches, how to identify one, and then picking one. This guide will help you regardless of your situation, so let's do it from the beginning.

Step 1 – Researching And Picking A Niche On Top Online

Marketplaces

You don't have to try your luck by promoting random offers to see if a niche is profitable or not. You can find this information easily, simply by looking at top selling categories in popular online marketplaces.

While there are a ton of marketplaces you can do your research around, including amazon, we have found the ones that make it easier to research, find, and pick a niche. These are ClickBank, and JVZoo. Let's see how easy it is to do it!

On ClickBank

Start by visiting “clickbank.com”. You'll have an idea of what type of products and niches perform well by checking the featured offers on the homepage.

But the best way to find the best niches is to go to the marketplace by clicking on the “affiliate marketplace” tab, then clicking on the “search” icon on the following page.

Next, click on the drop-down menu below “sort results by” and select “gravity” to position best-selling offers on top. This is how you can identify the most profitable niches on this site, but be aware that you'll get similar results in other marketplaces.

To identify the niche of an offer by name, look at the “cat” or “category” section in the offer’s card. Notice how some of the top selling niches are health and fitness, self-help, E-business, online marketing, and cooking. There you have it, some of the niches you can pick from!

Searching On JVZoo Market

JVZoo is an affiliate platform that is similar to ClickBank. To find what niches are hot and trending there, simply visit “jvzoomarket.com” to go the website’s marketplace. Now scroll down to the “today’s top sellers” section. There you’ll see the type of products that are currently making the most money. And to find top selling niches, check under “top categories”.

Step 2 – Researching Related Search Terms

Now that you have picked your niche, it is time that you find the search terms related to that niche.

Search terms are long-tail keywords that potential customers use to find content in your niche, and also when they are researching products before making a purchase decision.

It is important that you collect these search terms before you start your YouTube Business because you can use them to optimize your videos for maximum reach.

On Google

Let's start this research on Google. This is the search engine we'll use because a large majority of potential customers will use it. What you'll do is type your niche keyword into the search bar, and wait for the autocomplete suggestions.

These are the most popular search terms that your audience is using on Google, and the good news is that by using these terms you can rank your videos on top of the search results pages! We'll be teaching you how to do that in an upcoming lesson, so let's continue with what we have at hand.

On YouTube

Alright, let's take this search to YouTube. Although you'll be targeting the same audiences on both platforms, it could happen that you'll find different segments of the same audience using different search terms on YouTube.

So simply go to YouTube, and type your niche keyword in the search bar. Then, wait for the autocomplete suggestions. And there you have the results. As you can see, although the results are very similar, they can include more specific keywords that give you ideas about what type of videos you can create to funnel those searches.

Wrapping Up

You can finalize by saving the search terms you found by adding them to an Excel spreadsheet. This will help you to have them handy every time that you create content for your channel!

Chapter 3: Creating And Optimizing A Business YouTube Channel

Hey there friends! You just did a great job researching and picking a niche to start off on the right foot, and now it is time to go on YouTube.

Your job now is to establish a presence, and for that you have to create a YouTube channel for your business.

In this lesson we are going to show you how to create a branded YouTube channel that is optimized to reach the right viewers and customers, step by step, the right way.

Creating Your Channel

To create a YouTube channel, you have to start by going to the YouTube website while logged in to your Google account.

Once there, click on the profile icon to open the YouTube menu, and then click on the “settings” tab. On the following page, click on the “add or manage your channels” link.

On the following page, click on “create new channel”. Now you are going to enter the name of your brand or business into the “brand account name” field. Next, click on the “create” button.

Customizing And Optimizing Your Channel

Great job! Now that you created a branded channel, it is time for you to customize it, and to optimize it.

Start by clicking on the “customize channel” button. This will take you to the channel customization page, where you are going to add your channel icon, your channel art, your channel description, and more.

Let’s start with the channel icon. For this, click on the edit button inside the icon placement. Next, click on the “edit” button. On the following page, click on “upload photo”, and upload your company logo.

Now it is time to optimize the channel. For this, click on the “about” tab, and then on “channel description” on the following page.

What you’ll do now is to compose a description of your brand and a summary of the content that viewers will find on the channel. Here you are going to include keywords and search terms, so your channel appears on searches that target those same keywords and terms in YouTube searches. You can click on “done” when you finish.

And that is it folks! As you can see, creating a branded YouTube channel for your business is a piece of cake, you just need to apply the right optimizations to make it really attractive and search-friendly from the get go!

Chapter 4: Setting Up A Sales-Oriented YouTube Video

Hey there everyone! We just walked you through the steps necessary to create and optimize a high-converting YouTube channel for your business, and now we are ready to move to the next step.

That’s right, we’re about to show you how to set up a sales-oriented video. We know you’ve been anticipating this lesson because video is where the meat is, and your expectations are right, because we are going to show you not only how to upload the video, but also how to apply the optimizations that will help you attract viewers and convert.

Getting Started

Let’s start off by uploading your video. By this point you should have a video ready to publish. So go to the YouTube homepage while logged in to your channel, and click on the profile menu button. Next, click on the “YouTube studio” option in the menu.

Once on the YouTube studio dashboard, click on the “create” button. Then, click on the “upload video” option. Now you are going to click on “select file”. Locate the video file that you are going to upload from your computer, and double-click on it to start the upload.

The video will start uploading, and you can continue the job by customizing it and adding your optimizations.

Customizing The Video

Ok, let's start by composing the video title in the "title" field. Here you are going to type the title of your video. Don't try to be too original. Simply describe the content of the video and add the keywords or search terms that best describe that content well, like we're doing in this example.

As you can see, we added one of the top search terms we found during our keyword research, and we added the name of our business at the end of the title to differentiate it from the rest of the videos on the results page.

Alright, now it is time to compose the video description in the "description" field below. Again, the secret here is to add a brief summary of the content in your video filled with keywords and search terms. Here you are not as restricted by space, so we recommend you add from 3 to 5 keywords and search terms, the ones that are most relevant to the video.

It is also important that you add an action URL with a call to action at the end of the description. That way, you can instruct viewers to click on the URL to discover a product or offer at a given point during the video, and they'll simply have to scroll down a bit and click while they're still engaged.

Now click on “upload thumbnail” to upload a custom thumbnail for your video. Always add custom thumbnails to your videos instead of using a segment of your video as thumbnail.

Alright, now select the “no, it’s not made for kids” option under “audience”, and click on “more options”. Here are the additional configurations that you are going to do.

First, insert your keywords and search terms in the “tags” field. Next, select the language of your video. Now click on the “category” menu button and select the correct category of your video. Done? Ok, then let’s click on “next” to move to the next step.

Now it is time to add “video elements” to your video. There are two types of video elements you can add. “End screen” are elements that you can add at the end of the video, and “cards” are elements that you can add during the video.

These elements are on-screen buttons that you can use as CTAs to encourage viewers to complete an action during or at the end of the video.

Let’s show you a quick example.

Let’s add a “subscribe” CTA and a recommended video card at the end of the video. For this, click on the “add” button corresponding to “add an end screen”.

Once on the “end screens” window, click on “plus element”. Next, click on the “subscribe” option. The editor will insert the “subscribe” card at a point near the end of your video, but you can select a different time.

Now click again on “plus element”, and select “video”. Now select the “best for viewer” option, and click on “save”.

Awesome job! Once you are done adding your video elements, click on “next” to continue. On the following window, select the “public” option. Then click on the “publish” button.

And that’ll be it! You can copy the video link provided by YouTube to share your video on your other social channels, but you can hold on to this for a bit, because we’ll be showing you how to share and embed your video in a couple of upcoming lessons. Stay tuned!

Chapter 5: Embedding Your YouTube Sales Video On A Blog Post

Hey there friends! You just uploaded your sales-oriented video to YouTube, where you are guaranteed a steady stream of views and clicks, and now it is time to expand that reach to other channels!

There are a variety of channels where you can promote your video, and we'll start by showing you how to add it on a blog post. This will expose your video to web visitors that reach your blog content through search, and it is easy to do. Let's do this!

Getting Your Video Embed Code

You have to start by getting the video embed code. This is a code that you can use to insert your video on a blog post page, and you can get it straight from your channel dashboard.

So let's go to the dashboard first. Start on the YouTube homepage, and click on the profile menu button. Next, click on the "YouTube studio" option in the menu.

Once on the channel dashboard, click on the “videos” tab on the left sidebar menu. Now locate the video that you are going to insert into the blog post, and click on the “options” icon. Now click on “get shareable link”.

Creating A Blog Post To Insert Your Video Onto Your Site

Alright folks, now it is time to create the blog post where you'll insert your video. This not only has the benefit of expanding your reach, it also helps you create a backlink that increases the ranking and relevance of the video.

For this example, we are going to create a blog post for our WordPress website. If you are using a different content management system, you might have to take slightly different steps, but the basic implementation applies.

If you're using WordPress like us, follow these steps. Start on your site's dashboard, and move to the “posts” tab on the left sidebar menu. Now click on the “add new” option.

This will open the post editor, where you'll compose your new blog post. This should be a blog post optimized to drive traffic to your video, so people watch and convert.

Ok, so you are going to start by composing the article title in the “add title” field. Make sure to add the main keyword or search term that you want to target, and an actionable phrase or hook. You can use the same title of your YouTube video here, minus the name of your business at the end.

Now you are going to compose your blog post below. A blog post to embed your video should be a maximum of 500 words to simply summarize the points in your video. Close the post with a call to action letting readers know that they can watch the rest of the content by playing the video below.

Embedding Your Video

Now to open a space, click on the “plus” icon. Now scroll down the blocks menu, locate the “embeds” tab, and click on it. Next, click on the YouTube icon. Now you are going to paste the embed URL you got from your channel dashboard into the YouTube URL field. Then, click on the “embed” button.

Awesome job! As you can see, the video is embedded at the bottom of the blog post. This is a great strategy to funnel website visitors to your videos because some of them will find the blog post by using the keywords you are targeting, but might simply end watching the video instead of reading the blog post.

A little trick you can use to send the viewer from the blog post page to YouTube is to use the caption field to insert a CTA. Simply click on the “write a caption” field, and then type “watch on YouTube. Next, highlight this text and click on the “link” icon. Now paste the embed URL into the “paste URL” field, and then click on “apply”.

Let’s now optimize this post with tags and a featured image before you publish it. For this, click on the “document” tab in the editor menu on the right. Now click on the “tags” tab, and insert your keywords and search terms into the “tags” field, just like you did on YouTube.

Now click on the “featured image” tab. Click on “set featured image”, then click on the “upload files” tab, then on “select files”, and locate the image that you’ll use as a feature image on your computer. Double-click on it, and then click on “set featured image”.

Publishing Your Post

Now that you are all set and done, click on the “publish” button, and confirm. And that’s it! You can always repurpose your YouTube videos for your website this way, which will help you to create backlinks for your YouTube video and to add more content for your website!

Chapter 6: Cross-Posting Your Sales Video To Your Business' Social Channels

Hey there everyone! You have just given a good boost to your YouTube business video by uploading it to your website, and now it is time to boost it through your business social channels too.

Now, you just can't drop a link to your video on Facebook and call it a day, so in this lesson we are going to show you how to cross-post your videos the right way.

Here we are going to show you how to use Facebook and Twitter, the best places to share external URLs and generate conversions out of it.

Start By Shortening Your Shareable Link

The first thing that you have to do is to shorten your video link. This is an important step for two reasons.

For one thing, shareable links don't look good on social posts because they're not customized and are long.

Second, social media sites decrease the relevance of posts with YouTube URLs because they would rather that you upload videos directly to their platforms. Luckily, you can game that restriction with a shortened URL.

The best service to shorten URLs is bit.ly. To use it, simply visit bit.ly on your browser, paste your shareable URL into the “shorten your link” field. Now click on the “shorten” button and copy the shortened link. Save this link somewhere handy so you can share it easily.

Cross-Posting Your Video On Facebook

All right folks, Let's start by cross-posting the video on Facebook. this is going to be easy. First, log in to your Facebook account and go to your business page.

Once on your business page, click on the “write a post” field. What you'll do now is compose a Facebook post to promote your video. Start by adding the video title as the post headline on top. Now in the space, compose a brief description of the video. Make sure to use your keywords and search terms, and to add a call to action to ask users to click on the link to watch the video.

Alright, now you are going to paste your shortened video URL below this text. Facebook will fetch a link preview, so click on the “close” icon to cut it out of the post.

What you'll do instead is to insert the video thumbnail as the post image. For this, click on the “photo/video” button, locate the thumbnail image, and then double click on it to upload it.

Now spell check your copy, check that the URL is correct, that the image looks good in the preview, and then click on the “post” button.

And that’s it! The post looks incredible, and users simply have to click on the link to watch the video directly on YouTube!

Cross-Posting Your Video On Twitter

Now you are going to cross-post your video on Twitter. For this, go to your Twitter business account.

Once there, click on the “tweet” button.

When composing your post on Twitter the strategy is similar to Facebook. Open the post by adding the video title first. Now compose a brief description of the video below the headline, making sure to use your keywords and search terms, and to add a call to action.

What you’ll do now is to make your keywords into hashtags. Simply identify a keyword and type a hash symbol before it. In the case of search terms, simply put each keyword in the term together and place the hash symbol. This will rank your post on searches for those terms and keywords.

Now paste your shortened video URL below the text. Now click on the “gallery” icon to upload your thumbnail image to the post. Now spell check your post text, make sure that the link and image are correctly inserted into the post, and then click on “tweet”.

And that’s it! Now your post will benefit from exposure on tweeter too, which is one of the best places to drop external URLs!

As you can see, cross-posting your videos on social media is easy, and we highly recommend that you build a strong social media audience to push your content there with these very easy steps!

Chapter 7: Starting A Live Stream To Promote A Product Launch URL

Hey there everyone! Live streaming is all the rage now, although the majority of people are not using it to make money. You'll find people using live stream to chat and play video games, and only a few using it for its money-making potential.

In this lesson we are going to show you how to set up a YouTube live stream where you can go live for your business, interact with potential customers, and make money in real time!

Going Live On YouTube

Going live on YouTube is really easy, and in this lesson we are going to show you how to go live to promote a product launch URL to present your product and generate early bird sales.

Start on the YouTube homepage while logged in to your channel, and from there go to your YouTube studio dashboard by clicking on the profile menu button, and then on the “YouTube studio” option.

Once on the dashboard page, click on the “create” button on the top bar menu. Then, click on the “go live” option from the display menu. This will take you to the live streaming page.

Setting Up The Stream

Now it is time to start setting up the live stream. First, make sure to allow YouTube access to your camera and microphone so the live stream runs.

Now click on the “stream” tab. Here you are going to add your live stream information. Enter the name of your live stream into the “create a title” field. Here you are going to enter the name of your product launch.

Now you are going to add the product launch description into the “description” field. Here you are going to add a summary of the product launch. Make sure to include your target keywords and search terms for maximum exposure.

The next step is key. You are going to insert your product launch URL at the end of the description. You will entice viewers to take action during the live stream to encourage them to learn more about the product by clicking on the URL in the description. This is how you are going to drive conversions during the live stream!

Now make sure that the stream is set as “public”, and then click on the category menu button to select the correct category for the stream.

Now click on the “upload custom thumbnail” and upload a thumbnail image that you consider to be a good fit for this stream. You can use the product cover or an asset from the product launch kit as the thumbnail. Lastly, select the “no, it’s not made for kids” option in the “audience” section.

Starting Or Scheduling The Stream

You will have the options to broadcast the stream right away, or to schedule the stream for a later date.

Now, your best bet is to leverage buzz for the product launch to promote your live stream, so you have to make sure to either schedule the live stream to make time to promote the broadcast, or to promote it heavily on social media before you go live.

In case you want to schedule the live stream, simply enable the “schedule for later” option, then click on the date field and use the calendar function to pick a date, and then click on the time field to select the time of the broadcast. Once you schedule the broadcast, click on “create stream”.

On the other hand, if you are going live right away, simply disable the “schedule for later” option, and then click on “stream”. In this case, we just posted a reminder to our Facebook and Twitter accounts, so we expect viewers coming in the moment we start the stream, so make sure to post your reminders before you go live too!

Chapter 8: How To Send Your Product Video To The First Page Of Search Results

Hey there friends! One of the hardest things to achieve on YouTube is ranking a video on top of the search results pages. In fact, this is the reason why most aspiring YouTube businesses and creators quit.

And while it can certainly be discouraging to try to compete and rank in a platform as saturated as YouTube, you'll be glad to know that there is actually a way to rank your video on top, right from the moment you publish it.

In this lesson we are going to show you that trick, so you can send your videos to the first page of search results the easy and fast way, step by step!

Step 1 - Upload Your Video

Start by uploading your video to YouTube. Let's do it from the homepage this time. For this, simply click on the camera icon on the top bar menu, and then click on the "upload video" option.

Now click on "select file", locate your video file and double-click on it so your video starts uploading.

Step 2- Optimize For The Top Ranking And Publish Your Video

Now that your video is uploading, you can start optimizing it. The optimizations we're about to show you differ from the optimizations we applied when we set up the first sales video because the goal now is to compete for the top ranking on the top page by laser-targeting some search terms.

Let's start with the video title. This video title should be at least five words long, and it has to include your target keywords, search terms, the name of your brand or of the product that you are going to promote, and video keywords.

If you are unfamiliar with video keywords, allow us to explain them real quick. Video keywords are keywords that the YouTube and Google algorithms identify as keywords related to videos with high traffic. In other words, these are keywords targeted by the most popular videos on the platform.

Interestingly, these are very general keywords that when combined with your niche keywords can help you compete for the top spot on search results. These keywords include "Review", "How To", "Tips", "Tutorial", "Funny" as well as keywords related to the fitness, sports, health, and lifestyle niches.

By adding the name of your product or brand in the mix, the algorithm differentiates the title from the rest because it makes it unique, and places it on top. It is then your job to keep the top place by sending viewers to the video.

For this example, we are going to use the “Tutorial” keyword as our video keyword. We are going to combine this keyword with a high-traffic search term and the name of our business at the end of the title.

Let’s now optimize the description. The strategy here is simple: compose a description that is 250 characters long. Include all of your target keywords and search terms on this description and your product URL at the end.

Now click on “upload thumbnail” to upload your thumbnail image. Then select the “no, it’s not made for kids” option in the “audience” section.

Now click on “more options”. Scroll down to the “tags” section and insert your keywords and search terms into the “tags” field. This is crucial, because tags are going to help you to index your video faster.

Now select the language of your video, then click on the “category” menu button and select the correct category of your video. Then click on “next”.

For this example we are going to skip adding elements to this video, so we’ll simply click on “next” to continue.

Finally, you are going to select “public” in the “visibility” section, and then you’re going to click on the “publish” button.

Step 3 - Verify Your Ranking

YouTube videos are ranked immediately, and you’ll be able to check your spot in the search results page right away. For this, go to the YouTube homepage, enter the search term in your title, and then click on the “search” icon. And there you go! As you can see, our video is on the top spot of the search results page.

Let’s now visit google.com to check the ranking over there. Here you’ll apply the same steps: type your target search term in the search bar, and press enter to start the search. Then click on the “videos” tab. And there you have it again, our video is right there on the results for video! It doesn’t get any easier than this to send your videos to the first page of search results!

Chapter 9: Promoting Your Sales Video With A Custom YouTube Ad Campaign

Hey there everyone! We've come through all the right strategies that top YouTube businesses and marketers apply to grow their channels, so now we are going to take this training to the next level.

If you want to get more results, and get them fast, then you have to invest some money in ads. In the upcoming lessons we are going to show you how to set up paid advertising campaigns to boost your YouTube business videos, starting with this lesson, where we are going to show you how to promote your video with a custom YouTube Ad campaign.

Getting Started

To create a custom YouTube Ad campaign to promote your video, go to your YouTube studio dashboard by clicking on the profile menu button, and then on the “YouTube studio” option.

Next, click on the “videos” tab. Locate the video that you want to promote, click on the “options” icon, and then click on the “promote” option from the display menu.

On the following page, click on the “get started” button. This will take you to the Google Ads dashboard, from where you can create your custom YouTube Ad campaign.

Creating The Campaign

Start by clicking on “new campaign”. On the following page you are going to select your campaign goal. To create a custom campaign, select the “create a campaign without a goal’s assistance” option.

Now select “video” as the campaign type. Then select “custom video campaign” as the campaign subtype, and click on “continue”.

Now you are going to customize the campaign. Start by entering the name of your new campaign into the “campaign name” field.

As you can see here, “maximum cost per view” is selected by default in the “bidding strategy” section. This means that you will only pay when someone views your video ad. This is the optimum strategy for this campaign, so let’s skip to the “budget and dates” section.

Here you are going to enter your ad spend and your schedules. Start by clicking on the budget type menu button and select “daily”. Now enter the amount you want to spend daily on ads. You can start with a low number, such as $5 or $10, and can scale it from there.

By default, your campaign is set to “start as soon as ads approved” with no end date, but you can edit this schedule if you prefer to launch this campaign on a later date.

Now click on the “languages” tab. Click on the “enter language” field, and select your target language from the display menu. It is always better to select the language of your video, but you can select additional languages if you added captions to the video that you’ll promote.

Now click on the “locations” tab and select your target locations. Here you are going to select locations where people speak your target language, and where people are more likely to purchase your products after watching your video ad.

Now scroll down, and enter the ad group name into the “ad group” field. This is where Google Ads will save the ads that you create in this campaign.

Now click on the “demographics” tab. Here you are going to check the demographic attributes that best describe your perfect customer.

Now click on the “audiences” tab.

Here you are going to select attributes that define your audience. It can be an interest, an industry, or a customer lifecycle stage. The easiest way to use this feature is to enter a related keyword into the search box, and to select one or more attributes from the results.

Once you are done here, move to the “content” section and click on the “keywords” tab. Here you are simply going to enter your keywords and search terms into the keywords field.

Now click on the “topics” tab. Here you are going to select the topic that you want to target. The easiest way to make your selections is to simply locate and select your topic or topics from the menu.

Now click on the “placements” tab. Here you can select specific placements to show your video ads. Use this feature ONLY if your plan is to target a very specific audience on a very specific placement, such as subscribers and viewers of a YouTube channel, or visitors of a specific website.

All you have to do here is to enter a keyword into the search box, and to select placements from the results. In this example we don’t want to narrow down our reach to specific placements, so we will skip this selection.

Now in the “bidding” section you are going to enter the maximum bid that you are willing to place for each unique view.

Setting Up The Video Ad And Launching The Campaign

Alright friends, now it is time to set up the video ad. Start by adding your video ad to the creative. You can do this by typing the name of your video in the “search for a video” bar, or simply by entering your video URL into this same search bar.

Now you have to select the ad format. For this example we are going to select “skippable in-stream ad” to show our video ad when viewers are watching other videos.

Now enter your product or sales page URL into the “final URL” field, then click on the “display URL” field to generate the display URL for the ad.

Now enter the name of this new ad into the “ad name” field, and then click on the “create campaign” button. And now that your campaign is set, review your campaign settings and click on “continue to campaign”. And that’s it!

Chapter 10: Creating A Product Consideration Video Ad For YouTube

Hey there friends! Time to continue boosting your YouTube business video with ads, this time through a campaign that is optimized with settings that encourage product consideration.

In other words, we’re about to show you how to create a YouTube ad that will convince buyers that your product is their best choice!

Let’s start off this lesson right from the Google Ads dashboard, where you can access by visiting the “ads.google.com” URL while logged in to your Google account.

Creating And Customizing The Campaign

From there, click on the “new campaign” button. Now select “product and brand consideration” as the campaign goal. Then select “video” as the campaign type. Now select “influence consideration” as the campaign sub-type, and then click on “continue”.

Now you are going to customize the campaign. Start by entering the name of this new campaign into the “campaign name” field.

The rest of the campaign configurations will be similar to the configurations we made when we created the previous campaign.

First, click on the budget type menu button and select “daily”. Next, enter your daily ad spend into the amount field. We are going to launch the campaign as soon as the ads are approved, so we’ll skip the schedule in this example.

Ok, now click on the “languages” tab to select your target languages. Next, click on the “locations” tab to select your target locations. Now move to the “ad group name” column and enter the name of your new ad group.

Now you are going to move to the “people” section. Click on the “demographics” tab to check your audience demographic attributes.

Then, click on the “audiences” tab and add your audiences attributes. Here we strongly recommend that you select “in-market” attributes. This will help you to target viewers that are active online buyers, which are more likely to make a purchasing decision after watching your video ad.

Then, click on the “audiences” tab and Next, move to the “content” section and click on the “keywords” tab. Enter your keywords and search terms into the keywords field. Then click on the “topics” tab and select the topics that you want to target with your ad.

In case you want to target specific website visitors or viewers of a specific channel, click on the “placements” tab. We are not going to pick specific placements, so we will skip this configuration. Lastly, enter your maximum “cost per view” bid into the “bidding” field.

Creating The Product Consideration Ad And Launching The Campaign

Alright folks, time to set up the ad. Start by pasting your video URL into the “search for a video” field.

For this type of campaign we recommend you select “video discovery ad” as the ad format. This will show your ad on more than one placement, including the YouTube homepage, on search results pages, and on recommended video feeds. That way, you’ll avoid people skipping your video ad, while also giving them more time to consider clicking on the video.

Now you are going to customize the ad and compose the ad copy. Start by selecting a thumbnail. Next, compose the ad headline in the “headline” field. Next, compose a description into the “description 1” field. You can add a description extension into the “description 2” below, but this is optional.

Then, enter the ad name into the “ad name” field, and click on the “create campaign” button. On the following page, review your campaign settings, and click on “continue to campaign”. And that’s it!

Chapter 11: Creating A Customer Retargeting Campaign On YouTube

Alright folks, we’re nearing the end of this journey, so we’ve saved a big strategy for last. In this lesson we are going to show you how to retarget potential customers that have interacted with your videos and your channel on YouTube!

Getting Started

You can create a customer retargeting campaign on YouTube by adding viewers that have shown interest in your product and sales videos to a retargeting list. This way you can retarget them with more content from your channel until they convert!

For this, start on your Google Ads dashboard, and from there click on the “tools and settings option” in the top bar menu. Then, click on the “audience manager” option.

Creating The Retargeting List And Launching The Campaign

This will take you to the “remarketing” section of the audience manager, where you can create your retargeting list.

Start by clicking on the “plus” icon. Next, click on the “YouTube users” option from the display menu.

Now you can start setting up the list. First, enter the name of your new list into the “audience name” field.

Now click on the “list members” menu button. Here you can select which users to retarget according to how they interact with your videos or your channel.

You can retarget people that viewed any or certain videos from your channel, people who viewed any or certain videos as ads, people who subscribed or visited your channel page, people who have liked your videos, people who have added videos from your channel to a playlist, and people who have shared a video from your channel.

The best strategy here is to select “viewed any video as an ad from a channel”. This retargeting strategy allows you to retarget viewers who have completed viewing one of your video ads. This is a signal of interest and sometimes of purchasing intent, so retargeting these viewers will lead to a conversion after 5 or more retargeted videos.

Next, click on the “YouTube channel” menu button and select your YouTube Business channel from the list.

The default “pre-fill options” and “membership duration” settings are optimal, so you can skip these settings for now. Our recommendation is for you to track the behavior of YouTube leads to reconfigure these settings later on. For example, if you find the majority of your leads convert after 15 days, then you can set your “membership duration” at 15 days, but you have to do this after several days of running your retargeting campaign.

And now that you are done customizing the retargeting list, click on the “create” button. And that’s it! Now YouTube will add viewers that match your retargeting criteria to this list, and will show them more of your content to increase your sales!

Chapter 12: Outlining Your Perfect YouTube Sales Funnel For 2020

Hey there everyone!

These past training lessons have walked you through the manual strategies that are going to get you started on the right foot, and now we're about to get into the brainy stuff, the strategies that will help you plan, improve, optimize, and scale.

And we are going to start by teaching you how to outline the perfect YouTube sales funnel for 2020. In this lesson you'll learn how to develop a funnel according to your current efforts, and what type of videos you'll have to produce to move each viewer into your funnel.

Step 1 – Identify Goals And Set Stages

It is important to identify what the goals of a sales funnel are and to set them in order before you set up the stages in your funnel.

In this training we're focusing on driving sales and making profit, yet the majority of your business leads won't move right into the bottom of the funnel, ready to make a purchase. That is why it is vital to establish different goals to capture leads at different stages.

You have to see the sales funnel as an inverse pyramid that goes from top to bottom. On top are the leads that are less likely to convert, the leads that may not even be aware of your brand, and that you have to "suck in". In the middle are the leads that are aware of your brand and are interested in your offer. And in the bottom are the leads that are ready to get their hands on your product.

Let's establish goals for each stage in the funnel:

- ✓ At the top of the funnel your goal is to drive awareness. that is, awareness about your brand, or your product, or your service. The intention is for the user to become aware that you exist, regardless of their desire to consume what you offer.
- ✓ At the middle of the funnel your goal is to drive interest and consideration. Once a lead sees you as a trustworthy authority, they'll keep hanging around, watching your videos, either because you are a trusted source of information, or because your products offer a real way to solve an issue or need in their life.
Notice that at this point you can also drive desire. This means that a lead is not only considering your product, but is actively desiring your product, yet there is an objection stopping the lead from taking action, such as price, or maybe they need to learn more about the product before making a purchase.
- ✓ Finally, at the bottom of the funnel the goal is to drive action. This is when a lead is ready to convert by signing up for a trial or making a purchase.

Step 2 – Make A Content Audit

The next step is to audit your channel to make a content inventory. What you'll do at this point is to check the content that you have in your channel and to take notes about the different types of videos that you have produced. And, you are going to analyze how each video can help a lead move from one stage to another.

Doing this will help you to better identify at what point of the YouTube content lifecycle you are in. For example, you might find that you have more videos that are simply optimized to help people find your videos on YouTube, but that don't push your brand or products too much.

Or, you may find that you have lots of videos that are centered on your products, and that are designed to put viewers in the mood for purchasing.

By taking inventory of the different videos you have, you can fine tune your content strategy to match the goals you need to achieve at each stage of the funnel. In other words, you can find out how many videos you have to create to have an equal number of videos for each stage. This is especially helpful if you're just getting started.

Step 3 – Plan Your Content Mix For Each Stage Of The Funnel

By this point you know the mindset that will push viewers into each stage in a YouTube sales funnel, and you have a clearer idea of the type of content that you need to produce to balance things out.

But to properly balance your content mix, you have to apply a content split for each stage in the funnel, and we've found out this to be the perfect content split for your mix:

- ✓ 40% of content for the top of the funnel. This means that 40% of your content has to be intended to reach leads. In other words, search-friendly videos that are not necessarily about your brand, but about entertaining things that your audience likes.
- ✓ 40% of content for the middle of the funnel. This means that another 40% of your content will be intended to showcase your products in a context that is familiar to your audience, using storytelling techniques.
- ✓ 20% of content for the bottom of the funnel. This means that the last 20% of your content will be intended to encourage your viewers to take action, or at the very least to find your product videos if they're actively researching them.

And that's it folks! You can design an agency-level sales funnel for your YouTube business in three simple steps, guaranteed. Are you curious about what types of videos work best for YouTube business, and which ones perform best for each stage in the funnel? Then tune in to the following lessons!

Chapter 13: Enabling Monetization

On YouTube Easily In 2020

Hey there friends!

We've been talking about using YouTube to do business the easy way by applying monetization strategies that help you to turn viewership into profits from sales driven through the YouTube platform.

But let's not forget about channel monetization, the main income strategy offered by YouTube to content creators, which you can leverage to generate an additional income stream from ads that run on the videos that you upload to your channel.

How Does Monetization Work?

Channel monetization is a revenue sharing model implemented by YouTube to encourage creators to upload the highest quality content possible to the platform. The more a creator is able to engage viewers and increase watch time, the more money they can make.

And it works like this: You follow a series of simple steps to apply for monetization, and once your channel is approved, ads will start running on your videos. Each time a viewer completes watching an ad for a certain period of time, the advertiser pays YouTube for the ad, and you get a cut from that payment.

Things To Know Before Enabling Monetization

Enabling monetization is a great way to supplement your YouTube business income, but YouTube is going to review your channel before enabling you for monetization.

These are some things you need to know in order to prepare your channel for the review process if you want to start earning ad revenue as soon as possible:

- ✓ Create videos that encourage prolonged watch times. This is, videos that are entertaining and that keep the viewer watching until the end. In general, you have to make videos that are between 6 to 25 minutes long, depending on the topic.
- ✓ If you're using stock footage and audio, make sure to have your licenses up to date, and to know exactly where you are getting your stock assets from. This will help you avoid duplication claim as reason for non-approval.

- ✓ Your channel needs to have at least 4,000 combined view hours and a minimum of 1,000 subscribers to get monetized. These numbers aren't difficult to achieve if you produce quality content. It is also necessary to do an SEO audit on your published videos so you can optimize your content for maximum visibility, which will help you reach those numbers more easily.
- ✓ Avoid encouraging viewers to do a “sub for sub”. YouTube will deny your application if you use “sub for sub” as an engagement strategy. Instead, call viewers to subscribe, like, and turn on notifications.
- ✓ Make sure to review all guidelines on the “YouTube channel monetization policies document” that you'll find at support.google.com/youtube/answer/1311392.

Enabling Monetization

Alright folks, now that you've prepared to apply for monetization, here is what you'll do, step by step:

1. Set up an AdSense account if you haven't already.

AdSense is the ad revenue share program for publishers and creators, and that's the platform where YouTube will process your payments. You can create an AdSense account at google.com/adsense/start/.

2. Sign in to your YouTube account and channel that you want to monetize, click on the profile menu button, and then click on the “creator studio” button.
3. Click on the “monetization” tab, which you’ll find on the left sidebar menu.
4. If you’re eligible to apply for the monetization program, click on the “start” button inside the “review partner program terms” card, then confirm that you agree to the terms and conditions.
5. Click on the “start” button inside the “sign up for Google AdSense” card and sign in to your approved AdSense account.

Now all you have to do is to wait for approval, which can take 30 days or less. In that time, keep uploading awesome content and engaging with your audience.

What If I’m Not Approved?

There’s a certain number of applications that don’t get approved for one reason or another, but you don’t have to worry!

If you’re not approved at first, simply examine the reasons the company gives you for non-approval, take the necessary steps to fix them, and wait for an additional 30 days from the day of non-approval to submit a new application.

Once You Get Approved

Celebrate! Post a “thank you” video and give a shout out to your most active and most engaged viewers, and keep creating awesome videos!

Chapter 14: Top YouTube Marketing Tips To Increase Sales in 2020

Hey there everyone!

When your objective is to drive sales and generate profits, you have to go above and beyond the strategies that you would normally use to simply increase traffic and boost awareness, and that's where YouTube Business Made Easy comes in.

Yet you can't underestimate the power of applying proven YouTube marketing tactics when it comes to increasing your chances of driving more sales simply by pushing the right buttons. In this lesson we are going to discuss the best YouTube marketing tips that will help you to increase sales in 2020.

Create Short Videos

We have talked about the importance of creating videos that promote lengthier watch times.

These are videos that are on average between 6 to 25 minutes long, and the intention is to boost retention. But it so happens that the contrary can work as well, if not better, in some instances.

That's why it is important to include short videos into your mix. Videos that last less than 2 minutes can generate over 50% of your views, and they're more effective to deliver your message to certain leads at certain stages of your sales funnel.

While a single short video won't help you to drive an immediate sale, or to show more than one ad, adding several short videos to your channel can help you to increase watch times because more people will be able to watch your videos in short bursts.

This will also help you to capture attention and increase consideration of people short on time, such as people at their jobs. These people are more likely to make urgent decisions, and if you create a video series to showcase your products, then you're more likely to drive a sale from those prospects!

Brand Your Channel

The look of your channel has to match your vision and the way that you want your audience to perceive your products. You have to think of your channel as an extension of your overall online presence, or as another page on your business website.

This means that every element of your channel has to be customized in a way that is recognizable for people who have visited your other channels, such as your website, and your social media profiles.

This means that you have to use the same logo that you use on your other channels as your channel icon, to use your header images as your channel cover, and to match the colors and design of cards and CTAs in your channel and videos with the design on your website.

Be Consistent

A primer marketing strategy is to be consistent with content. This means that you have to publish content at the right time, and when your audience expects it.

The starting point is to establish a content schedule. You can, for example, study when your viewers are more active, and at what times and on which days you get the most views, and to publish your videos at those times. You can look at the analytics section of your channel to get this information.

You can then plan a content schedule based on those results. For example, if you get peak views and engagements on Tuesdays at 8 PM, then you have to upload your videos on those days and at that time.

You have to also plan the build-up. You can create teasers to post on your other social media channels, and you can set up reminders for your subscribers and followers.

Lastly, it is recommended that you automate your content calendar. You can do this by uploading your video when it's done, and scheduling the launch for the right time.

Use Annotations As Calls To Action And Links

YouTube allows you to include annotations in your videos.

Annotations are pop-up elements that appear during play time, and that you can use to encourage viewers to take certain actions by clicking on them, such as watching another video, visiting someone else's channel, or visiting a landing page.

You can add annotations through the video editor!

Chapter 15: The More Profitable Types Of YouTube Videos In 2020

There is an almost unlimited number of videos that you can create and have success with on YouTube. As long as you create helpful content that is entertaining, you're set to make it big on YouTube.

The thing is that not every type of video is going to be profitable, regardless of how many views they get you. What you want is to learn what type of videos are profitable, so let's talk about them!

Educational Videos

These are videos where you educate leads that are looking for information. This can be information about anything in your niche, about things that can help them find an answer to a question.

You can use infographics and whiteboard animations for your educational videos, where your brand becomes the guide to the answer or “class” that you are providing.

These videos are great for capturing leads that are at the top of the funnel, people that are simply researching stuff way before they're aware of your product.

One strategy that you might want to apply, is to not give out your whole content in one video; instead, use your educational videos as intros to a larger content series that you can use to move viewers into the bottom of your funnel. For example, you can create a video as the first part of your series, and invite viewers to download an eBook where you provide the rest of the info.

Explainer Videos

These are videos where you explain the solution to a problem. They're similar to educational videos, but they're more specific about explaining a means to an end, such as explaining how a product helps people to solve a problem, or how a tool helps people make more money.

These videos can help you to catch leads at the top and in the middle of the funnel, because they can spark awareness among people at the top, and create interest among people in the middle. The trick is to create videos that explain how the products or services that you sell can solve a given problem, to explain it quickly and in simple terms.

Product Videos

These are videos where you showcase your products or services. Most commonly, they are short videos that work as an introduction to your products, where brands explain what the product is all about.

Please note that these are not adverts and you shouldn't use them to focus on selling the product. What you'll do is to simply create a video where you clearly explain what your product or service is, how it works, and what type of problems it solves.

You can use these videos to engage leads in the middle. While they won't necessarily help you to drive an immediate sale, they will help you to create interest and consideration, leading to a conversion down the line.

Tutorials And Demos

Video tutorials are videos where you explain to viewers how to do something, from how to use an online tool, to how to create a bird house. These "How To" videos are incredibly effective when it comes to driving conversions, because they encourage the user to learn how to complete a task or achieve an objective if they use the tool or product in the tutorial.

Because of that, these are the type of videos that you are going to use to convert people in the last stages of your funnel.

For example, you can create a tutorial video to teach people how to use a tool that you are promoting to create a website with integrated shopping cart in just a few minutes. Because you are providing a quick, easy solution to a problem that lots of people want to solve, you can drive lots of conversions from that video simply by inserting your affiliate link in the video description!

Testimonials

In these videos you are going to feature testimonials of people providing feedback about your product. Normally, these are recordings of clients that have had a good experience with a brand, product, or service.

What you have to do is to ask some of your customers to rate your product on camera and talk about how it has helped them to achieve results.

Testimonial videos are the equivalent to reviews on a website, and they can help leads at the bottom of your funnel to make the final purchasing decision.

Chapter 16: Alternative Monetization Strategies For Businesses On YouTube

One of the things you'll hear from every successful hustler when you ask them what their secret is, they'll say diversification. Diversification means to create additional income streams to supplement your main hustle.

In this case, your main hustle is YouTube, and it is a good idea to supplement your YouTube Business strategies with additional streams. The following is a list of our favorites.

Patreon

Patreon is a membership platform that allows creators to set up a membership program so they can monetize their content, and it is a favorite among creators on YouTube. With it, you can create a membership business through which your biggest fans are able to pay a fee to get access to your premium content.

What this means is that you can use Patreon to set up a paywall for your best content. For example, you can create a premium video course that is not available on YouTube, and that only Patreon subscribers can get.

And in case you're not monetizing your YouTube content, you can create a subscription service where you send subscribers a different product monthly for a fee, and you can funnel viewers from YouTube to sign up to this service.

Dailymotion

Dailymotion is a video streaming service that is similar to YouTube in look, and feel, but that offers more relaxed guidelines and access to an international audience that you won't find on YouTube.

Dailymotion has a partner program that lets you monetize your video content, and it's easy to apply. This means that you can join Dailymotion, join the partner program, and monetize your videos there too!

Brid TV

Brid TV is a scalable YouTube alternative with a great monetization solution and white label service for content creators.

What makes Brid TV special is that it is a dedicated online video player platform. This means that it lets you host your videos on their platform, so you can then embed them on your site or anywhere else, and you can monetize your videos with different ad formats in those placements.

Twitch

Twitch is a live streaming platform. Perhaps the most popular streaming site of all, it has attracted former YouTube live streamers, who have ended up moving their business there.

Twitch is a great platform to stream live events, product demonstrations, and services live. It gives you a great opportunity to show what you do in real time, and it has a great partner program that lets you monetize your streams once you build a sizeable follower count.

Mixer

Mixer is an interactive live streaming platform that offers a similar experience to that of Twitch.

Held as the best Twitch alternative, it offers juicy monetization options such as membership programs, a partnership program, and access to verified channels for businesses that'll help you take monetization to a new level!

Facebook and Facebook for Creators

There's no doubt that Facebook is still the king of social media platforms, and one of the most active, most profitable sites on the planet.

It is also a great platform to post your video content and make money off it. It works similar to YouTube in that you have to upload your videos and add your action URLs.

But be careful! On Facebook, you have to directly upload the videos to the platform instead of sharing the YouTube video URL.

The only bad news is that video content on Facebook doesn't have the same evergreen potential as on YouTube, so what you have to do is to create shorter videos and to share them on a more regular but equally consistent frequency.

On the other hand, Facebook for Creators is a Facebook program that you can join to monetize your video content on Facebook, which is possible through ads, brand collaborations, and other built-in monetization tools.

You can join the Facebook for Creators program at facebook.com/creators.

Chapter 17: YouTube Business Do's And Don'ts

Do's

Plan Everything

It is crucial that you plan everything you'll do with your YouTube business. From your next video to your upcoming product launch video campaign, it is important that you think about the results that you want to get before you execute.

Be Customer-Centric

Your YouTube business content has to be customer-centric. This means that you have to create videos that make the viewer aware that you are selling a product or service, and that help them make faster purchasing decisions.

Be Entertaining

Your message is going to resonate more with your audience if you entertain and educate at the same time. This ensures that viewers will remember your brand down the road.

Be Original

You have to work on creating a voice and feel that is unique for your brand. Something that helps new viewers differentiate you from the competition, and that cues repeat viewers into recognizing your unique brand identity.

Be Consistent

Make sure to stick to a content schedule. Release videos when people expect them, share relevant stuff with your social media followers at specific times every day, and so on.

Engage With Your Audience

Engaging with your audience is as important as creating quality content. Simply reply to comments, like interactions, and give shout outs to active viewers and subscribers and you'll keep your prospects happy.

Engage With Other YouTube Businesses

It is highly recommended that you interact with other brands on YouTube. Find similar businesses to yours, and comment on their videos. This will expose your brand to an untapped audience.

Be Visually Attractive

Maintaining a clean, professional image and neat production values will help you attract more viewers and keep existing ones coming back. A well-designed channel and videos are great for growth.

Don't Spam

Never over-promote your offers, and never spam your subscribers with notifications. Users won't buy anything just because you publish a product video every day!

Don't Try To Go Viral

At least not all the time. Going viral is sometimes a matter of luck, and failed attempts can look desperate to your viewers. So if you plan to make a video go viral, plan well and find assistance if possible.

Don't try To Become Famous

Becoming a famous YouTuber is not the job of a YouTube business. To have a very large viewership you have to create entertainment-centric videos with a very mainstream appeal. Instead, focus on growing your own limited, niche audience. That's where your customers are at!

Don't Force "Sub 4 Sub"

There is no point on following random accounts if you run a YouTube business, so offering to subscribe to other channels if they subscriber to yours is a surefire way to grow a fake audience that'll never buy from you.

Don't Disappear

If you have to take a break from YouTube for any reason, tell your subscribers and announce it on your channel. This way people will know that you'll be back, and won't think that you became inactive.

Don't Publish Corporate Stuff

Don't publish videos about your business or about very technical details of your service unless you do it in an entertaining way, for example by publishing a "behind the scenes" or production bloopers video.

Don't Argue With others

Don't take criticism personal and never argue with users in the comments. Always reply with professionalism, and ignore, even block, overtly toxic interactions.

Don't Over Publish

Avoid posting too many videos, and avoid publishing and creating every video that pops into your mind. Simply keep your intended content schedule consistent and your YouTube business will be alright!

Chapter 20: YouTube Business Frequently Asked Questions

Is YouTube Business Different From YouTube Marketing?

YouTube business is a more wholistic approach to YouTube than YouTube marketing

because the goal of YouTube business is to build a presence for your business on the platform AND to bring business-specific results.

That is, to attract customers, make sales, and keep the profits. To that end, a YouTube business has to learn how to do YouTube marketing. This means that YouTube marketing is essentially part of doing YouTube business.

And What Is The Difference Between A YouTube Business And A YouTube Creator?

As a YouTube business, your goal is to represent your business on the platform, to attract customers on the platform, and to generate sales, yet your focus is not on the platform.

A YouTube creator is someone, or a brand, that creates video content specifically to grow as a YouTube content creator, and to profit from the platform.

Is It Necessary To Do YouTube Business If You Are Already Promoting Elsewhere?

YouTube is an excellent platform to diversify your content and your reach. It is one thing to favor one social media site over another because every social media site offers something different and caters to a different type of customer, and you could be missing out if you ignore YouTube simply because you are promoting elsewhere.

On YouTube you can find a very valuable segment of your audience that is not active on other social platforms. Besides, YouTube is one of the top most active websites that exists. Lastly, YouTube is the place to drive real business results.

Does Your Business Need More Than One Channel?

It depends on how many different types of products you sell. If you sell vastly different products under the same business, then it is a good idea to create more than one channel. Again, only if it makes sense.

You might also want to create more than once channel if you plan to execute more than one type of content strategy. For example, you can create a channel for training and educational content, and one for showcasing your offers.

Is It A Good Idea To Upload Video Commercials?

Of course! But you have to do it with the intention of advertising them. In fact, creating short commercial videos to advertise your products can be the quickest way to make money on YouTube.

Now, be careful about uploading commercials as content for your audience. Instead, focus on quality content that guides them through your funnel until they decide on a purchase. The commercials will help you to convert users that are not your subscribers yet.

Can You Organize Content On Your Channel Like On A Website?

Organization is crucial when it comes to the image of your business and branding, and that includes the presentation of your YouTube channel.

Thankfully, you can create playlists to organize your videos into categories, and you can do it right from your channel dashboard. This will help you to keep your channel nice and tidy, and it will make it easier for viewers to browse your content.

Is It Better To Produce Your Own Videos Or To Outsource Them?

In general, it is a better idea to outsource your videos to dedicated video creators and in fact, to automate most of the non-business tasks and to delegate the creative output down the line.

Now, it may be that creating your videos is your passion and your business, so as long as you know how to create awesome, quality videos, then you can go this route. Otherwise, it is more productive to dedicate your energy to the business strategies.

Do You Need A Large Budget To Start A YouTube Business?

No! In fact, starting a YouTube business offers you a very low-entry to making money online, and you can always scale.

You are going to need some money though, according to what you can afford to create by yourself and the things that you'll need to outsource. For example, if you have graphic design skills, you can create your own thumbnails and graphics, which means that you can cut that out from your budget.

On the other hand, there are going to be things like ads that will require you to invest some money, but again, it all comes down to scaling. This means you can start investing as low as $5 a day on ads, and to scale once you're able to reinvest your earnings.

Are Views And Subscribers Important To A YouTube Business?

As baffling as this may sound, they're not that important. Thousands of views and subscribers won't tell you the whole picture, and won't tell you anything about the results that you want for your business.

The metrics you want to look at are the metrics that signal intent. These include watch times and click-throughs.

Is There A Way To Know Whether A YouTube Lead Is Considering Your Products?

One easy way to determine this is to scan intent after the user clicks-through from one of your videos to your website.

The first thing you have to take note of is what type of video the viewer comes from: a video from the top of the funnel, from the middle, or from the bottom.

Next, you are going to analyze their behavior on your website. Things you can learn about a visitor are session times, clicks, pages visited, whether they converted or submitted a form, and abandoned carts. You can check that information on your analytics tool of choice.
